Pacifism and Just War Theory

Dr. Joseph Betz, Professor of Philosophy
Dr. Paul Sheldon, Professor of Psychology
Villanova University

7:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Room 300
St. Augustine Center
Villanova University

In any group of anti-war protesters, motivations differ. For some, their presence is consistent with an all-encompassing non-violent lifestyle. Others are conscientiously or religiously opposed to war. Still others are proponents of the Just War doctrine which requires rigorous consideration of conditions of moral legitimacy. Learn the components of these philosophical positions and how they apply to today's conflicts.

Free and Open to the Public
Free Parking, Southwest Corner of Ithan and Lancaster Avenues

The St Augustine Center is on the North side of the main VU campus near the train tracks. From the parking lot, go North on Ithan to the main entrance and head West on the campus. Stay to the right. Go by the new Nursing building (Driscoll). The Center is the building after the parking lot.

Cosponsored by
The Villanova University Center for Peace and Justice Education and Villanovans for Peace
